 The Crown Prosecution Service</h3> The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) prosecutes criminal cases that have been investigated by the police and other investigative organisations in England and Wales. The CPS is independent, and we make our decisions independently of the police and government. Our duty is to make sure that the right person is prosecuted for the right offence, and to bring offenders to justice wherever possible. The CPS: decides which cases should be prosecuted; determines the appropriate charges in more serious or complex cases, and advises the police during the early stages of investigations; prepares cases and presents them at court; and provides information, assistance and support to victims and prosecution witnesses. Prosecutors must be fair, objective and independent. When deciding whether to prosecute a criminal case, our lawyers must follow the Code for Crown Prosecutors. This means that to charge someone with a criminal offence, prosecutors must be satisfied that there is sufficient evidence to provide a realistic prospect of conviction, and that prosecuting is in the public interest.     <h3>

When the police think that they have completed their investigation they may pass the information to the CPS. The CPS will make the decision whether or not to prosecute in cases involving more serious offences, whilst the police are able to take this decision in cases involving more minor offences. This is set out in the Director's Guidance On Charging.

Criminal cases are divided into the following three types of offence:

- Summary only offences: these are cases that can only be heard in the magistrates' courts. They include a range of offences, encompassing driving whilst over the limit, common assault, and disorderly behaviour. For the most serious offences, the magistrates' court can impose sentences of up to 6 months imprisonment for a single offence and an unlimited fine.
- "Either way" offences: these are more serious cases that can be heard in either the magistrates' court or before a judge and jury in the Crown Court depending on the seriousness of the offence. This range of offences includes all allegations of dishonesty and drugs, as well as some categories of assault. The reason that these offences can be heard in either court is because, for instance the offence of "theft" could apply equally to shoplifting of a jar of coffee, or the stealing of a work of art. The magistrates decide which court the case should be heard in. However, the defendant retains the option to "elect" to be tried in the Crown Court, even if the magistrates keep the case. Where the magistrates initially decide to keep the case, if, having heard the evidence they conclude that in fact their powers of sentencing are not sufficient, the magistrates can "commit" the defendant to the Crown Court for sentencing after conviction.
- Indictable only offences: these are the most serious cases and can only be heard before a judge and jury in the Crown Court, which has more lengthy sentencing powers. This type of offence includes murder, rape, robbery and causing death by dangerous driving.

All cases will have their first hearing in the magistrates' court, and the more serious cases will then move to the Crown Court.

In the magistrates' court the case will be heard by two or three magistrates or a district judge who will decide whether the defendant is guilty.

Trials at the Crown Court are heard before a judge and jury. The jury is made up of 12 members of the public who, after hearing the evidence decide whether the defendant is guilty. In the case of a conviction the Judge will decide on the appropriate sentence to give.

The CPS considers all cases in accordance with the Code for Crown Prosecutors, which sets out the principles the CPS will apply when making decisions about whether or not to prosecute. The CPS does not decide whether a person is guilty of a criminal offence, but makes a fair, independent decision about whether the case should be considered by a criminal court. This test in the Code for Crown Prosecutors is lower than the test applied by magistrates' or a jury, where the case must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

If you are the victim or complainant and the police or

CPS later decide not to proceed or substantially change the charge(s), you will be told the reasons why within five working days.

If you are unhappy with a CPS decision not to start, or to stop, a prosecution you may be able to ask for it to be reviewed through the Victims' Right to Review scheme.

The CPS has an initiative called the Victims' Right to Review Scheme, which makes it easier for victims to seek a review of a CPS decision not to bring charges or to terminate proceedings.

If you are a victim seeking to exercise your right to request a review of a CPS decision not to bring charges, discontinue proceedings or offer no evidence in a case please visit the Victims' Right to Review page.

Please note that the scheme applies only in relation to qualifying decisions made on or after the 5 June 2013.

Once a case is started the police will pass the file on to their local Witness Care Unit (WCU). The WCU manages the care of victims and witnesses from the point of charge through to the conclusion of a case. The WCU is managed by the police, not the CPS.

The WCU will allocate you a dedicated witness care officer. Your witness care officer will act as your single point of contact and will keep you informed of the case's progress, from the point of charging the suspect, to sentencing or acquitting the defendant.

Your witness care officer will contact you if the defendant(s) have pleaded not guilty to discuss any support and assistance that you may require to attend court. This includes the need for special measures.

The WCU will:

- Let you know where and when the trial will happen
- Arrange for you to visit the court before the trial starts, so you know what to expect
- Help you get to the trial and give evidence, e.g. by assisting you to arrange child care or transport to court measures are measures which can be put in place to help victims of serious crimes and victims and witnesses who are considered to be vulnerable and intimidated to give their best possible evidence in court. The police and Witness Care Unit will discuss this with you.

The judge or magistrates will decide whether the special measures should be granted following a request from the prosecutor and you will be informed of the Court's decision.

Special measures may include:

- Giving evidence through a TV link: The witness can sit in a room outside the courtroom and give their evidence via a live television link to the courtroom. The witness will be able to see the courtroom and those in the courtroom can see the witness on a television screen; but the witness does not have to be in the courtroom;
- Video recorded evidence: The witness' evidence is recorded and played to the court;
- Screens around the witness box: A screen is placed around the witness box to prevent the defendant from seeing the witness;
- Removal of wigs and gowns: The judge and lawyers in the Crown Court do not wear gowns and wigs so that the court feels less formal. This is usually used for young witnesses;
- Evidence given in private: This is when members of the public are not allowed in the courtroom;
- Use of communication aids: This is when the witness needs to use an aid to communicate;
- Examination through an intermediary. An intermediary is someone who can help a witness understand questions that they are being asked, and can make his or her answers understood by the court.

If you are particularly worried or afraid, you can also ask the Investigating Police Officer or Witness Care Officer for extra help.

Victim Personal Statement

Victim Personal Statement

Toggle accordion

If you are a complainant, in addition to giving a witness statement you can, if you want to, give a Victim Personal Statement (VPS). This allows you to describe the effect that a crime has had on you and could include the following:

- How the crime has affected you physically, emotionally or financially
- Whether you feel vulnerable or intimidated
- If you are worried about the defendant being given bail
- Whether you are considering claiming compensation
- Anything you think may be helpful or relevant

The statement can be made at the same time as your witness statement and can be added to at any point before the court hearing. It will become part of the papers the court sees. This will include the police, the CPS, the defence, and the magistrates and judges at the courts seeing the statement. If the impact of the crime changes over time then you should add or amend your VPS and the police may ask you to do this later.

If you are a child or a vulnerable adult, your parent or carer can make the VPS for you if you want them to.

If you are a business you can also make an 'Impact Statement' explaining how it has been affected by the crime.

Once you have signed your statement, you won't be able to change it. But you can give a new one to the police if you want to add more information.

You can ask to read out your VPS in court or have someone read it for you, if the defendant is found guilty.

The court will consider your VPS before sentencing an offender, whether it's read out or not.

Young victims and witnesses

Young victims and witnesses

+ Toggle accordion

Special measures are available to support young victims and witnesses to give their best evidence and help reduce some of the anxiety of attending court.

Child witnesses under the age of 18 are automatically eligible to apply for special measures by virtue of section 16 of the YJCEA 1999 and the court just has to satisfy itself that the special measure is likely to maximise the quality of the witness's evidence before granting an application.

The special measures potentially available include examination of the witness through an intermediary at the police interview and at court; giving evidence "in private" by clearing the courtroom of members of the public; removal of wigs and gowns by judges and lawyers; giving evidence in court from behind a screen; the use of video recorded evidence in chief; giving evidence via live video link from a separate room; the use of pre-trial video recorded cross-examination; and, the provision of aids to communication by means of an interpreter, computer or other device.

The Young Witness Initiative has led to the CPS, police and Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunal Services agreeing to fast track cases involving a witness under the age of 10.

Victim Support's youth programme, You & Co, helps young victims and witnesses cope with the impact and effects of crime. You do not have to report the crime to the police to get support from them.

There are two overarching areas of cybercrime:cyber-dependent crimes - which can only be committed through the use of online devices and where the devices are both the tool to commit the crime and the target of the crime, andcyber-enabled crimes - traditional crimes which can be increased in scale by using computers.These crimes take on a number of different formats - from hacking and use of the dark web to trolling on social media and phishing or identity thefts. The aims of such activities may be to commit sexual offences such as grooming or sharing indecent images, to control or disrupt computer systems, or steal money, information or data.The dark web is used by criminals to trade illegal items online including drugs and firearms.<h2>Cybercrime</h2>Hacking is the unauthorised use of or access into computers or networks by using security vulnerabilities or bypassing usual security steps to gain access. Criminals may hack systems or networks to steal money or information, or simply to disrupt businesses. Malicious software - or malware - can be spread between computers and interfere with the operations of computers. It can be destructive, causing system crashes or deleting files, or used to steal personal data. Viruses, worms, Trojans, spyware and ransomware are all types of malware.Distributed Denial-of-Service (DDOS) attacks are where more than one, and often thousands, of unique IP addresses are used to flood an internet server with so many requests that they are unable to respond quickly enough. This can cause a server to become overloaded and freeze or crash, making websites and web-based services unavailable.The dark web is made up of a number of untraceable online websites. Specific software and search engines must be used to access the websites.<h2>Social media offences</h2>Trolling is a form of baiting online which involves sending abusive and hurtful comments across all social media platforms. This can be prosecuted under the Malicious Communication Act 1988 and the Communications Act 2003.Online threats could take many forms including threats to kill, harm or to commit an offence against a person, group of people or organisation.Disclosure of private sexual images without consent - so called "revenge porn" is a broad term covering a range of activity usually involving an ex-partner, uploading intimate sexual images of the victim to the internet, to cause the victim humiliation or embarrassment. It is a criminal offence to re-tweet or forward without consent, a private sexual photograph or film, if the purpose was to cause distress to the individual depicted.Online harassment can include repeated attempts to impose unwanted communications or contact in a manner that could be expected to cause distress or fear.Grooming refers to the actions of an individual who builds an emotional connection with a child to gain their trust for the purposes of sexual abuse or sexual exploitation.Stalking online is a form of harassment which can involve persistent and frequent unwanted contact, or interference in someone's life

Virtual mobbing takes place when a number of individuals use social media or messaging to make comments to or about another individual, usually because they are opposed to that person's opinions. The volume of messages may amount to a campaign of harassment.

Cyber-enabled fraud

Fraudsters use the internet to gain sensitive personal information through phishing attempts. Often criminals pretend to be a company and trick a victim into using a malicious website or installing malware on their device. A phishing attempt can be sent to a range of 'targets' at the same time.

This can lead to identity theft - criminals gathering enough information about a victim to take their identity and commit fraud. Personal details can be used to obtain documents such as passports or driving licences, open bank accounts or credit card accounts, or take over existing bank accounts.

Criminals can also use the internet to carry out intellectual property fraud - creating counterfeit goods to sell online, either billed as genuine or clearly fake, or setting up and running websites purporting to be genuine retail outlets. Intellectual property fraud includes streaming content owned by someone else online, for example a new cinema release or live sports matches.

Although mostly committed by men against women, victims can also be male and abuse happens within same-sex relationships.Domestic abuse does not always have to be physical to be prosecuted - sometimes victims may not even be aware it is happening.It can include any behaviour deployed by an offender to obtain control or power over another, and we recognise that emotional abuse can be just as harmful as physical violence.But even when a victim has reported abuse to the police, there are complex reasons they may not see through a prosecution - love, shame, guilt, isolation, fear of the process and language barriers to name just a few.The level of victim attrition is one of the reasons these cases can be difficult to prosecute. That is why we are working so hard at the CPS and across the criminal justice system to improve the experience and provide protection for these victims and their children.Our Domestic Abuse Best Practice Framework, adopted in 2019, brought together successes and insights from across the criminal justice system.It emphasised that victims feel more confident with Independent Domestic Violence Advisor support and appropriate use of special measures, such as giving evidence behind screens or via live link, are considered in each case.There is also common misconception that complainants 'press charges' against perpetrators but that is not how the system works in this country.While victims are rightly at the centre of everything we do, the CPS prosecutes on behalf of the Crown and for the good of the wider public.That means we can prosecute domestic abusers without the support or direct involvement of victims through 'evidence-led prosecutions' - for example relying on witness accounts or CCTV footage.However, the onset of COVID-19 and concerns about the impact of lockdown on domestic abuse victims have heightened our sense of urgency and purpose in understanding why prosecutions have reduced in recent years.

To address this, we have developed a 12-month programme which aims to:

- explore the disparity between DA reports and criminal justice outcomes, and;
- explore and find solutions to issues that have emerged since the onset of Covid-19, to increase victim, stakeholder and wider public confidence.

Strategic partnerships and public confidence will be essential to achieving these goals, so we will be working throughout the coming months to share best practice and achieve justice outcomes for all.

What is Domestic Abuse?

The Domestic Abuse Act 2021 received royal assent in April 2021. It aims to raise awareness about the devastating impact of domestic abuse on victims and their families and to further improve the effectiveness of the justice system in providing protection for victims of domestic abuse and bringing perpetrators to justice.

The Act introduces a statutory definition to ensure that domestic abuse is properly understood, viewed as unacceptable and is actively challenged across statutory agencies and in public attitudes. It sets out who can be a victim of domestic abuse behaviours and establishes how victims need to be 'personally connected' to the perpetrator. It also makes clear that children are deemed to be victims of domestic abuse if they see or hear, or experience the effects of, the abuse. There is also no requirement that they live in the same household as the abuser.

When are people personally connected?

The Domestic Abuse Act 2021 sets out how people can be 'personally connected' including if they are or have been in an intimate relationship, married, civil partners, agree or have agreed to marry each other, have had, or have a parental relationship to a child or are relatives. There is no requirement for the victim and the perpetrator to cohabit although we know many will have. This often then provides perpetrators with personal knowledge about what might most traumatise or impact victims, making this crime particularly distressing and sometimes leaving victims at risk of future violence and abuse.

Who are counted as family members?

Family members are defined within the legislation as the father, mother, stepfather, stepmother, son, daughter, stepson, stepdaughter, grandmother, grandfather, grandson, or granddaughter, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, niece, nephew or first cousin (whether of full blood or of half blood or by marriage or civil partnership) of that person or of that person's spouse, former spouse, civil partner, or former civil partner.

What are the types of abuse?

Domestic abuse comprises of broad categories of behaviour including physical or sexual abuse, violent or threatening behaviour, controlling or coercive behaviour, economic abuse and psychological, emotional, or other abuse. It can be prosecuted under a range of offences and it does not matter whether the behaviour consists of a single incident or a course of conduct.

Domestic abuse is rarely a one-off incident and it is the cumulative and interlinked types of abuse that have a particularly damaging effect on the victim. The 'domestic' nature of the offending behaviour is an aggravating factor because of the abuse of trust involved.

Who faces abuse?

Men, women and children can all be victims of domestic abuse. Domestic abuse occurs amongst people of all gender identities, ethnicities, sexualities, ages, disabilities, immigration status, religions or beliefs, and socio-economic backgrounds. The CPS recognises domestic abuse differs in severity between incidents, and more often than not, will increase in frequency and seriousness, having a cumulative impact on the victim which can be particularly damaging.

Domestic abuse is prosecuted as part of the CPS

Violence against Women and Girls Strategy

The CPS Violence Against Women and Girls (VAWG) Strategy is an overarching framework to address crimes that have been identified as being committed primarily but not exclusively by men against women.These crimes include domestic abuse, rape, sexual offences, stalking, harassment, so-called 'honour-based' violence including forced marriage, female genital mutilation, child abuse, human trafficking focusing on sexual exploitation, prostitution, pornography and obscenity.This CPS approach to VAWG crimes follows United Nations conventions which the UK government has ratified, and which inform the cross-government VAWG framework. However, the Annual Violence Against Women and Girls report published by the CPS includes data on all perpetrators and victims, irrespective of gender. The CPS is determined to secure justice for all victims, and recently reaffirmed our commitment to male victims.

Controlling or coercive behaviour

Controlling or Coercive behaviour

Toggle accordion'Controlling or Coercive behaviour' describes behaviour occurring within a current or former intimate or family relationship which causes someone to fear that violence will be used against them on more than one occasion, or causes them serious alarm or distress that substantially affects their day to day activities. It involves a pattern of behaviour or incidents that enable a person to exert power or control over another, such as isolating a partner from their friends and family, taking control of their finances, everyday activities like what they wear or who they see, or tracking their movements through the internet or mobile phone use.The domestic abuse definition specifically states:<blockquote>Controlling behaviour is: a range of acts designed to make a person subordinate and/or dependant by isolating them from sources of support, exploiting their resources and capacities for personal gain, depriving them of the means needed for independence, resistance and escape and regulating their everyday behaviour. </blockquote>Coercive behaviour is: an act or a pattern of acts of assaults, threats, humiliation and intimidation or other abuse that is used to harm, punish, or frighten their victim.

So-called 'honour-based' violence and forced marriage

So-called 'honour-based' violence and forced marriage

Toggle accordion

So-called 'honour-based' violence is a crime or incident committed to protect or defend the so-called honour of the family or community. The term can cover a collection of practices used to control behaviour within families or other social groups, in order to protect perceived cultural and religious beliefs or honour. These crimes are included within the domestic abuse definition, but may also be carried out by people who are not partners or family members.

A number of offences can be committed in the context of honour-based violence and forced marriage, including common assault, GBH, harassment, kidnap, rape, threats to kill and murder. Examples of instances that might trigger a so-called 'honour' crime include someone becoming involved with a boyfriend or girlfriend from a different culture or religion, wearing clothes or taking part in activities that might not be considered traditional within a particular culture, or seeking a divorce.

Female Genital Mutilation

Toggle

Female Genital Mutilation (FGM) is a collective term for a range of procedures which involve partial or total removal of the external female genitalia for non-medical reasons. It is sometimes referred to as female circumcision, or female genital cutting. The practice is medically unnecessary, is extremely painful and has serious health consequences, both at the time when the mutilation is carried out, and in later life.

FGM has been classified by the World Health Organization (WHO) into four major types, all of which may be relevant to the offences arising under the FGM Act 2003:

- Type I: Clitoridectomy: partial or total removal of the clitoris;
- Type II: Excision: partial or total removal of the clitoris and the labia minora, with or without excision of the labia majora;
- Type III: Infibulation: narrowing of the vaginal opening through the creation of a covering seal;
- Type IV: Other: all other harmful procedures to the female genitalia for non-medical purposes, e.g. pricking, piercing, incising, scraping and cauterizing the genital area.

Stalking and harassment

Toggle

Stalking and harassment occurs not only in a domestic abuse setting – people can be stalked by strangers or acquaintances too.

Stalking is a specific type of harassment, often described as a pattern of unwanted, fixated or obsessive behaviour which is intrusive, and causes fear of violence or serious alarm and distress. For example, a person following, watching or spying on someone else, or forcing contact with them through social media, might be considered as stalking.

Harassment offences involve a ‘course of conduct,’ or repeated actions, which could be expected to cause distress or fear in any reasonable person. This will often include repeated attempts to impose unwanted contact or communication on someone.

What is the CPS doing?

The CPS domestic abuse policy and prosecution guidance sets out how the CPS tackles domestic abuse. We want, as the principal prosecution service for England and Wales, to make sure victims, irrespective of background or circumstance, see justice done. Our overarching aim is to secure justice in every possible domestic abuse case.

We have developed a proactive prosecution approach, which looks at how strong cases can be presented at court without the need for the victim to attend. This includes the use of technology such as police body worn video footage and 999 calls where appropriate.

We also work closely with Independent Domestic Violence Advisors (IDVAs) and other specialist domestic abuse advocates who support victims of abuse through the CJS.

We want to help victims to understand what constitutes domestic abuse or coercive and controlling behaviour - and warn perpetrators such behaviour may be a crime that will not be tolerated.

Support for victims and witnesses

The CPS is committed to taking all practicable steps to help victims through the sometimes difficult experience of becoming involved in the criminal justice system. There are multi-agency Witness Care Units staffed by police and CPS Witness Care Officers across the UK.

'Special measures' can also be applied for and put in place during court proceedings to make the experience less traumatic for victims and witnesses. Where they are available, measures include:

- Screens to shield the witness from the defendant

- A live video link to enable the witness to give evidence from a separate room
- Evidence in private, with the court cleared of the public and most journalists
- Giving evidence by a video-recorded interview

Read further information on special measures in court.

The Code of Practice for Victims of Crime (Victims' Code) was introduced in 2006 and was last updated in April 2021. It sets out the minimum levels of service which victims can expect from agencies that are signatories to it.

How are we tackling hate crime and what impact are we having?

At the CPS we recognise how important it is to effectively prosecute hate crimes. Here are some of the things we're doing to achieve this:

- We train all our prosecutors on hate crime. We designed the training with the support of our community partners to make sure it accurately reflects the cases our lawyers are likely to be dealing with.
- We quality check our cases regularly. CPS lawyers review each other's work and provide feedback on both open and closed cases - helping us to learn from each other and deliver the best quality service.
- We hold regular feedback groups locally and nationally. These groups give us the opportunity to review cases with members of the community to understand where we've done well and discuss how we could improve. These are particularly important for helping us to improve our communication with victims, witnesses and families. Read more about the national Hate Crime External Consultation Group.
- We've published public policy statements to explain how we prosecute hate crime. These explain the process that we go through when prosecuting a hate crime and let victims and witnesses know what they can expect from us.
- We work closely with partners across the criminal justice sector and beyond to help the public understand hate crime and what we can do to tackle it.

What impact is this having?

International and organised crime

International and organised crime presents a serious threat to our national security as well as the economic well-being of the UK.

The Serious Economic, Organised Crime and International Directorate (SEOCID) prosecutes members of the most serious organised crime groups in England and Wales.

We work with the National Crime Agency to tackle cross-border crime including sexual exploitation, human trafficking and modern slavery, drug and firearms smuggling and many other serious offences. A team of CPS prosecutors is based in key countries overseas to assist with international cases such as these.

CPS specialist prosecutors can also conduct extradition proceedings on behalf of foreign authorities when requests for a person located in the UK are received from abroad. Prosecutors can also make extradition requests to non-European countries.

Toggle accordionChild sexual exploitation is a type of sexual abuse, which can involve children being groomed, online exploitation of children or the trafficking of children.Sometimes children being exploited can be given gifts or accommodation, alcohol or drugs as a result of performing sexual activities. They may be led to believe they are in a loving relationship and do not recognise that what is happening to them is exploitation.

Child sexual exploitation can also occur through the use of technology without the child's immediate recognition. They may be persuaded to post sexual images online.

In all cases of child sexual exploitation, those exploiting children have some kind of power over them, whether this is their age, gender, intellect, physical strength, economic or other resources.

Drug and firearms trafficking

Toggle accordionTrafficking of drugs and firearms can take place in various ways, with criminals also turning to the web to evade law enforcement action.The CPS is constantly working to meet the challenges brought by new methods of drug importation, supply and production, and firearms importation.We work with law enforcement colleagues both in the UK and abroad to prosecute the drug traffickers and suppliers.

Modern slavery

Toggle accordionModern slavery is an umbrella term covering slavery, servitude, forced or compulsory labour, and human trafficking. Offences of slavery, forced labour and human trafficking are criminalised by the Modern Slavery Act 2015, and may include other serious offences such as conspiracy to traffic, false imprisonment, controlling prostitution for gain and rape.A person is 'trafficked' when they are moved to or around a country by others for the purposes of exploitation, for example low or unpaid labour or illegal sex work.Slavery, servitude and forced or compulsory labour is described as: "Holding another person in slavery or servitude or requiring them to perform forced or compulsory labour, construed in accordance with Article 4 of the Human Rights Convention."The CPS is working across government and with law enforcement agencies in the UK and abroad, to improve the criminal justice response to these offences and build capacity and capability in key source countries, in support of the Prime Minister's task force on modern slavery.We recognise the need to build investigatory and prosecution capabilities in modern slavery cases. Prosecutors provide early investigative advice to the police, assist with pre-charge procedures and work with investigators to build strong cases.CPS criminal justice advisors, based overseas in the 'Organised Immigration Crime Taskforce' assist with casework and investigations, effectively disrupting trafficking cases. Prosecutors also work closely with law enforcement and prosecutors overseas in Joint Investigative Teams, leading to prosecutions both in the UK and in the countries where trafficking originates.

Extradition

clearfix">Extradition is the formal procedure for requesting the surrender of persons from one territory to another for the following purposes:to be prosecutedto be sentenced for an offence for which the person has already been convictedto carry out a sentence that has already been imposed.The relevant primary legislation is the Extradition Act 2003. For a full understanding of extradition proceedings with any given state, one must also consult any applicable extradition instrument (treaty, convention or scheme).<h3>What are 'export' and 'import' extradition requests?</h3>An 'export' extradition request is made by another state to the United Kingdom, for the extradition of someone from the UK. It is sometimes known as an 'incoming' request as it is made to the UK.An 'import' extradition request is made by the United Kingdom to another state, for the extradition of someone to the UK. It is sometimes known as an 'outgoing' request as it is made by the UK. <h3>What offences can people be extradited for?</h3>Not all offences are "extradition offences". This depends on the definitions in <the Extradition Act, and any applicable treaty or convention governing extradition proceedings with the state in question.<h3>Export extradition to category 1 territories</h3>Part 1 of the Extradition Act regulates export extradition from the United Kingdom to category 1 territories. These territories are the other 27 Member States of the European Union, and also Gibraltar. This part of the Act implements the European Union Framework Decision of 13 June 2002 on the European Arrest Warrant and the surrender procedures between Member States.The National Crime Agency is the designated authority for the receipt of European arrest warrants (EAWs). It has an administrative function in certifying warrants that satisfy the requirements of the Extradition Act; for example the warrant must contain specified information relating to the alleged offence in accusation cases, or the sentence in conviction cases.<h4>Role of the CPS and process</h4>The CPS acts as the representative of the requesting judicial authority in extradition proceedings. All export extradition cases where the person is arrested in England and Wales are dealt with at Westminster Magistrates' Court in London.After the EAW has been certified the wanted person can be arrested. In certain circumstances a provisional arrest is possible before the EAW has been issued.At the initial hearing the district judge decides whether the person arrested is the person named on the warrant; fixes a date for the start of the extradition hearing within 21 days of the date of arrest; informs the person about the content of the EAW; explains to the person that he may consent to his surrender; and decides whether to grant bail or remand the person in custody pending the extradition hearing.At the final extradition hearing the district judge must decide a number of issues including: is the offence an extraditable offence? Are there any bars to the extradition? Is the extradition compatible with the person's rights under the European Convention on Human Rights and is extradition proportionate to the seriousness of the conduct and the likely sentence? If there are no statutory grounds to refuse the request, an order is made for the person's surrender.Where a person is wanted for prosecution or has not yet been sentenced, an extradition offence is one with a maximum prison sentence of 12 months in the requesting state. For certain prescribed offences, there is no requirement that a parallel offence exists in UK law. Otherwise the conduct complained of in the EAW must also be an offence in the United Kingdom. Where the person is wanted to serve a sentence, an extradition offence is one where a sentence of 4 months is imposed in the requesting state.The Extradition Act gives either the wanted person or the requesting state a mechanism of appeal against the decision.If, during the extradition proceedings, the requested person is charged with an offence in England and Wales, the extradition proceedings will await the outcome of the domestic matters. If the requested person is already serving his sentence, the judge can be asked to adjourn the extradition proceedings. Often this will depend on the length of sentence remaining, or whether the requested person can temporarily surrender for the foreign trial and then return to complete his UK sentence.

Export extradition to category 2 territories

Part 2 of the Extradition Act, in conjunction with any applicable extradition instrument, regulates export extradition from the United Kingdom to category 2 territories. These are states outside the European Union. At present there are almost 100 states designated as category 2 territories.

Upon receipt of an extradition request from a category 2 territory the Secretary of State for the Home Department, acting on the advice of the Home Office's International Criminality Unit, must decide whether or not to certify the extradition request.

Having certified the request, documents are sent from the Home Office to Westminster Magistrates' Court.

Role of the CPS and process

The CPS has conduct of proceedings on behalf of the requesting state in category 2 cases (as for category 1 territories), and all proceedings are heard at Westminster Magistrates' Court.

On receipt of papers a district judge at this court decides whether or not to issue an arrest warrant for the wanted person. The judge must have reasonable grounds to believe that the offence is an extraditable offence, which is defined in sections 137 and 138 of the Act and is similar to the provisions for category 1 territories, although the rules on dual criminality are different. A second requirement in accordance with section 71 of the Act is, in simple terms, that depending on the state concerned, the judge must also have reasonable grounds for believing that evidence or information contained in the request would in an analogous domestic case justify the issue of a warrant for the person's arrest. If the judge issues a warrant, the person may be arrested.

At the first court hearing the district judge informs the person about the content of the extradition request; explains to the person that he may consent to his extradition; fixes a date for the start of the extradition hearing, within 2 months from the date of the first appearance; and decides whether to bail the person or remand him in custody till the extradition hearing.

As with category 1 territories, provisional arrest is also possible with requests from category 2 territories, in accordance with sections 73 and 74 of the Act.

At the extradition hearing the judge must decide a number of issues: whether the documentation sent to the court by the Secretary of State complies with the Act; whether the individual arrested is the person named on the warrant; whether the offence detailed in the request is an extradition offence; be satisfied that the person has been given the necessary documentation including copies of the request and the Secretary of State's certificate; whether any of the bars to extradition apply, whether the extradition would be compatible with the person's rights under the European Convention on Human Rights and, for certain states, whether the request contains sufficient evidence.

If the district judge is satisfied on all the above issues at the extradition hearing, the judge must send the case to the Secretary of State.

It is the Secretary of State's decision as to whether the requested person should be extradited.

The Secretary of State must then consider a number of issues including the following: the possible imposition of the death penalty, in which case extradition cannot be ordered; the rule of specialty, which prohibits a person being dealt with in the requesting state for matters other than those referenced in the extradition request; and whether or not the person was in the UK following extradition from another state, in which case that state's permission must be obtained before extraditing to a third state.

If these factors do not prevent extradition, the Secretary of State must order extradition within 2 months of the appropriate day, defined in section 102 and in most cases the day on which the district judge referred his decision to the Secretary of State.

The Extradition Act gives both the requested person and the requesting state a right of appeal against the decision of the district judge, or the Secretary of State. Appeals are to the High Court with timeframes set out in the Act. It is also possible to appeal to the Supreme Court but as with category 1 territories this is only possible if the High Court certifies that the appeal involves a point of law of general public importance, and either the High Court or the Supreme Court gives leave for the appeal to be made.

Similar provisions apply as for category 1 territories if the wanted person is either charged with, or serving a sentence in respect of, a domestic offence.

Export extradition to non-category 1 or 2 territories

Many states are not designated as either category 1 or 2 territories. For these states export extradition from the United Kingdom may still be possible, although rare.

Reasons for refusing an extradition request

Reasons for refusing an extradition request include the following:

- 'Double jeopardy'; a person must not be prosecuted or sentenced in respect of an offence that he has already been convicted or acquitted of.
- Extraneous considerations; the request will be refused if the purpose of the request is deemed to be to prosecute or punish the person on account of race, religion, nationality, gender, sexual orientation or political opinions, or if extradited the person might be prejudiced at his trial or punished unfairly for any of these reasons.
- Passage of time; the request will be refused if it would be oppressive to prosecute or punish the person for the extradition offence due to the age of the alleged offence.
- Age of wanted person; extradition is not possible if due to his age the person could not be convicted of the offence in the United Kingdom.
- Absence of speciality provisions; speciality is the principle that a person may only be dealt with in the requesting state for the conduct in respect of which extradition was ordered. Extradition instruments invariably include speciality provisions.
- Earlier extradition of the wanted person to the United Kingdom; in order to permit extradition to the requesting state in this situation the United Kingdom must first obtain permission from the state that extradited the person to the UK.
- Human rights; extradition will be refused if it would not be compatible with the person's rights under the European Convention on Human Rights within the meaning of the Human Rights Act.
- Death penalty; a person must not be extradited if there is a possibility that the person will be sentenced to death. Extradition may be possible if the requesting state gives an undertaking that the death penalty will not be imposed.
- Physical or mental condition; if it would be unjust or oppressive to extradite the wanted person on these grounds the extradition request will either be refused or adjourned until the condition improves.
- Forum; a person must not be extradited if the judge decides that a substantial measure of the activity in question was performed in the United Kingdom. and that, having regard to a range of matters specified in the Act relating to the interests of justice (and only those matters), the extradition should not take place.
- Proportionality; in relation to EAW cases where the requested person is wanted for prosecution, extradition must not take place if the judge decides that extradition would be disproportionate. taking into account the seriousness of the conduct; alleged; to; constitute the extradition offence, the likely penalty and the possibility of the foreign authorities taking less coercive measures than extradition.

- Absence of a decision to charge and try; in EAW cases involving accusation warrants, extradition is not possible where it appears to the judge that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the requesting authority has not yet taken a decision to charge and try the requested person unless the sole reason for that situation is the absence of the requested person.

Import extradition

Import extradition essentially falls into two broad categories; extradition from category 1 or category 2 territories.

Category 1 territories are the other Member States of the European Union, and also Gibraltar. For these territories the EAW is the mechanism used to request surrender. Part 3 of the Extradition Act regulates the EAW scheme with regard to import extradition. Crown Prosecutors throughout England and Wales are responsible both for drafting EAWs in their own cases and for applying to the court for their issue. EAWs are issued and processed by judicial authorities without state involvement. In England and Wales, an EAW may be issued by a district judge (Magistrates' Courts), a justice of the peace, or a judge entitled to exercise the jurisdiction of the Crown Court.

Once issued, the prosecutor sends the EAW to the National Crime Agency which acts as the Central Authority for both incoming and outgoing EAWs.

The second category of import extradition cases concerns requests to category 2 territories which are designated states outside the European Union. The CPS drafts the extradition request which is sent to the Home Office which is responsible for transmission.

For requests to both category 1 and 2 territories CPS lawyers only prepare an extradition request after considering the Code for Crown Prosecutors. A request can be made: to prosecute the wanted person for offences stated in the request; to sentence the person for offences noted in the request that the person has already been convicted of; and, to carry out a sentence on the person that has already been imposed in respect of offences noted in the request.

Upon arrest in the requested state, the foreign court will conduct the extradition hearing in accordance with their legislation. If extradition is ordered United Kingdom police officers travel to the requested state to collect the person and return them to the UK. The person will be brought to the relevant court or, if the request was issued for the person to complete an existing custodial sentence, to the relevant prison.

Some states are not designated as either a category 1 or 2 territory. It may still be possible to make an extradition request in these circumstances, pursuant to section 193 of the Extradition Act. Such requests however are rare. Another alternative, also rarely used, is for the Secretary of State for the Home Department to seek an ad-hoc arrangement with the other state, to permit a request to be made.

By taking out the profits that fund crime, we can help disrupt the cycle and prevent further offences.The CPS has a specialist unit dedicated to asset recovery - CPS Proceeds of Crime (CPSPoC) - which is based within the Serious Economic, Organised Crime and International Directorate (SEOCID).<h3>The work of CPSPoC</h3>CPSPoC is a national service dedicated to asset recovery work. Restraint orders

It can be obtained from the Crown Court at any time from the start of an investigation. A restraint order can also be obtained to preserve assets for reconsideration applications and when obtaining confiscation orders against absconded defendants.CPSPoC can apply to the Crown Court for the appointment of a Management Receiver in cases where the assets being preserved need to be actively managed. If granted, a Management Receiver will be given certain powers to allow him/her to manage the assets of the defendant to maintain their value. This can include being given power to sell the assets to stop them reducing in value. The Management Receiver is paid from the assets that he/she manages.

Confiscation orders

Toggle accordionA confiscation order is an order of the Crown Court which requires a convicted defendant to pay a sum of money to HMCTS immediately or, if he/she shows that he/she needs time to pay it, within a fixed period of time (initially limited to a maximum of 3 months, which is extendable to a total of 6 months).An application for a confiscation order is considered as part of the sentencing process. The Crown Court will determine the defendant's benefit from their offending - this is calculated by reference to the value of the property or financial advantage that a defendant has obtained from his criminal conduct. It can also extend to assets other than those relating to the offence for which the defendant is convicted subject to certain qualifying criteria being met.The Crown Court will also determine the available amount - this is calculated by reference to the value of the defendant's realisable assets less any payments that take priority over a confiscation order and any tainted gifts made by him/her.The defendant will be ordered to pay the benefit from his/her criminal conduct unless he/she can show that some or all of it is no longer available. If he/she can do so, he/she will be required to pay the available amount.The Crown Court will also fix a period of imprisonment to be served if the defendant fails to pay the confiscation order. The length of the sentence is fixed by reference to the amount of the confiscation order. This is called the 'default sentence'.If the defendant's assets realise less than the amount of the confiscation order, he/she can apply to the Crown Court for a reduction of the order. He/she must show that his assets are not sufficient to pay the order. The court will take into account all of his/her assets at the time of the making of the application including any that he/she has obtained after the making of the order. However the court will not take into account any insufficiency that he/she causes to stop the order being paid.If the value of the defendant's available amount is less than the benefit from his/her offending and it is subsequently discovered that he/she has further realisable assets, a prosecutor can apply to the Crown Court for an increase in the amount of the confiscation order.

Enforcement of confiscation orders

Toggle accordionA confiscation order is payable to the magistrates' court. Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunal Service is ultimately responsible for collecting the debt owed by a defendant on a confiscation order.CPSPPOC takes responsibility for enforcing the most complex confiscation orders, which require the use of powers available to a prosecutor. CPSPPOC becomes the lead enforcement agency for the confiscation orders we enforce.The vast majority of confiscation orders are enforced by HMCTS using the powers available to the magistrates' court as they are less complex and, therefore, do not require the use of powers available to a prosecutor. HMCTS becomes the lead enforcement agency for the orders they enforce.When enforcing a confiscation order CPSPPOC will engage with the defendant (or their representative), the police, financial institutions, estate agents and others in order to assist the defendant to pay the order.If a defendant fails to pay his/her confiscation order, the magistrates' court will consider why this has happened and whether to order him/her to serve the default sentence. For confiscation orders made after the 1st

November 1995, serving the default sentence will not wipe out the amount owed by a defendant.

The CPSPPOC can use other methods to collect the amount owed. CPSPPOC can apply to the Crown Court for the appointment of an Enforcement Receiver. If granted, an Enforcement Receiver will be given certain powers to allow him/her to sell the assets of the defendant and pay the order. An Enforcement Receiver is an independent officer of the court and is not part of the prosecution team.

Compensation for victims

A defendant can be ordered to pay:

- i) a compensation order for the injury, loss or damage a victim may have experienced as a result of the crime and
- ii) a confiscation order which deprives the defendant of the proceeds of his/her crime.

Where a defendant cannot afford to pay both orders, the court will order him/her to pay the confiscation order and direct that those payments are used to pay the compensation order first. This way you will receive compensation and the defendant gets credit towards his/her confiscation order for those payments.

The court sets a final date by when the defendant must pay your compensation order. Some defendants pay their orders in full in one instalment, others pay in instalments. If you are the only victim awarded compensation, all of the money paid by the defendant will be paid to you. If there are other victims who were also awarded compensation, the money paid by the defendant will be divided between each of you. Each time the defendant makes a payment; you will receive a payment towards your compensation order, until it is paid in full or varied by the court.

The defendant can appeal the confiscation and compensation orders. If that happens, you will be notified of the outcome if the compensation order is reduced or revoked.

The defendant can also apply to the Crown Court to vary the amount of confiscation he/she has to pay. The Crown Court will consider how much the defendant has paid and what evidence there is that the defendant can afford to pay more. If the court is satisfied that the defendant cannot afford to pay more and has no more property to sell, the court will decrease the amount of confiscation the defendant has to pay to equal the amount s/he has already paid.

If the defendant needs more time to pay, he can apply to the Crown Court for an extension. The maximum time allowed is six months. If the time to pay the confiscation order is extended, it may delay when you receive your compensation.

Your compensation order can only be varied by the Magistrates' Court. If this happens, then HMCTS will update you.
